ETHNIC AND PLURALISM STUDIES SPECIALIZATION: APPROVED COURSES 2020-2021 (UPDATED AS OF AUGUST 10, 2020)

Notes for students:

- 1) Although we aim to make this list accurate and up-to-date, each student is responsible for checking the latest course information and enrollment policies (such as date of course registration) on the individual graduate unit website. More departments/courses may be added to the existing list as new information becomes available.
  - 2) Some departments do not allocate individual links to their course offerings, and you may have to scroll down the course description page for information on a specific course. Some courses may not yet have their syllabus/description uploaded.
  - 3) When taking a course outside of your department you may have to fill out an add/drop course form available from the SGS website. Some units, such as LAW, give limited access to their courses to students outside of their own faculty. Others may have enrollment restrictions (such as a later date of enrollment) for students outside of their department). Please make sure to check those restrictions in the respective department list course enrollment page (click on the department heading to access that department's course page) and contact the EPS administrator for questions if you have trouble enrolling in a course.
  - 4) Students should make sure to check each department and course information regarding how courses will be delivered.
  - 5) Courses not on this list may be approved on a special basis by the EPS Director. Such a course must a) be taught by a full-time graduate faculty member and b) have two thirds of its content dealing with ethnic studies and/or interethnic relations. Students can send in their suggestion for review with the course syllabus and the weekly description of its content.
- **** Please note that students need to get approval BEFORE taking the course, as we cannot guarantee that a course will be approved retroactively, and the student may find him/herself not being able to meet the collaborative program requirement.
- 6) When in doubt or if you need help enrolling in one of the courses, contact the Ethnic and Pluralism Studies program administrator
